Good Advertising Should Be Used to the Greatest Extent When the Need is Greatest

HE Merchant who has a real announcement to make during these days of stirring war news will find that it will have just as great a cumulative value as if he had told it during ordinary seasons. The need for things continue to exist. People still demand the things that they have been in the habit of using. Store business must go on just the same. Although temporarily delayed the buying season must start again.

The buying public may not demand today, nor tomorrow. But the demand for goods must eventually come.

Make your advertising express to the buying public that you are ready tomorrow or next week, just as well as today to supply its demand. People want to know what you have. Tell them about it. If you don't hear from them now you will later.

Good advertising should be used to the greatest extent when the need is greatest. You must advertise to the future buyer as well as the present. Your consistency in going after a trade marks your goods. It places an obligation on the people as to where they should buy.

Ostend, the famous Belgian resort on the North sea, is occupied by the troops of Emperor William, accord ing to a German official report arriv. ing from Berlin by way of London, if this report is true the Germans have reached the goal for which they aimed immediately after they captured Antwerp. Their forces now are only sixty-live miles across the sea from Dover and 115 miles from London. On their way to Ostend the Germans also took Bruges. The latest French official report does not touch upon the movements of the Germans and the allies near the Belgian coast line, where the one army has been trying to gain a firm er foothold and the other to throw back the advance. Of the hostilitie in the west it merely says that fight ing continues vigorously and that in the vicinity of Lille ground has been gained by the allies. Farther to the east along the battle line that now stretches from the North sea to the Swiss frontier a repulse of the Ger mans near Malaicourt is chronicled. A newspaper dispatch says that a German column has been hurled back with heavy casualties by the allies in the Vosges. Another newspaper report has it that the Ger

To win success one or the other of the opponents must break through the line, and the army having the greatest number of men and the Closing Quotations on the Chicago ability to move them to a chosen point seemingly has the better chance to succeed in this attempt.

Any allied force fighting on the coast will have the assistance of British warships, but it is unlikely that these vessels will bombard German forces occupying Ostend or other coast towns, for it would mean the destruction of the towns without gaining any military advantage.

Ask About Him.

If you are sick and have not been able to find relief for your ailment, make inquiries of your neighbors and friends regarding Dr. Prettyman's success in such cases.

He has been coming here for many years and his work has been productive of much good. Besides that, he is reliable, trustworthy, and merits the reputation he has made Investigate him and then try him. He charges nothing for consultation and his charges are reasonable, if he treats you.

He will be at his office, at the Linville hotel, Monday, October 19, where he can be consulted free of charge.
